Opportunity and Challenge

One of the great questions of Modernity has always been “What does it mean to be a Jew in the modern world?” When Judaism is not forced upon us, when it competes with other ideas in the marketplace, and when Jews are exposed to and influenced so powerfully by the culture in which we live, how do we navigate ideas like tradition, obligation, and covenant? The modern world comes with great opportunity. It also comes with great challenges for the Jewish people. I speak of challenges like assimilation, intermarriage, and a shrinking Jewish population. The 2013 Pew study reports that the intermarriage rate is soaring: 58% of all American Jews who have married since 2000 wed non-Jews. Yet, the same study revealed a fascinating fact: more intermarried families want to integrate their Jewish identities into their lives.

This unfolding narrative of modern Jewish life reminds me of an inspiring teaching from Rabbi Jonathan Sacks. He reminds us that the Chinese symbol for “crisis” also means “opportunity.” Sacks writes, “Any civilization that can see the blessing within the curse, the fragment of light within the heart of darkness, has within it the capacity to endure. Hebrew goes one better. The word for crisis, mashber, also means “a childbirth chair.” Written into the semantics of Jewish consciousness is the idea that the pain of hard times is a collective form of the contractions of a woman giving birth. Something new is being born. That is the mindset of a people of whom it was said that “the more they were oppressed, the more they increased and the more they spread.” (Exodus 1:12)

With the help of a task force, we have been thinking about our mindset on intermarriage, and how we can address some of the challenges and opportunities in our community. In the coming months, you will hear more about the ways Park Avenue Synagogue will strive to be an inclusive, welcoming community to interfaith families. We will address issues of education, life cycle events, support systems, and paths to conversion. Of the many critical conversations that are currently taking place in the Jewish community, I believe this is one of the most critical, and I am excited for us to have it here.

I am also excited to inform you of two upcoming programs that will help us frame this conversation. On April 4, we will welcome Professor Leonard Saxe. Dr. Saxe is the Klutznick Professor of Contemporary Jewish Studies at Brandeis and has written a number of important studies on the American Jewish community. On May 23, we will welcome Dr. Yehuda Kurtzer, president of the Shalom Hartman Institute of North America, who has emerged as an important voice in the American Jewish community. I anticipate important evenings of dialogue with both of these speakers about issues of Jewish identity and belonging to the Jewish community.

I hope you will join us for both of these evenings and participate in this critical conversation. Please be in touch if you have any questions.

Meet Our Judaica Design Consultant: Amy Reichert

Award-winning architect, exhibition designer, and designer of Judaica Amy Reichert has been working in close cooperation with the PAS Space Committee and Murphy Burnham & Buttrick Architects throughout the design process. Amy's role is to bring beautiful, appropriate, and custom-tailored Jewish design elements to the new Lifelong Learning Center and the revitalization of our 87th Street building while creating a unified look for our new campus.

Amy's creative process fuses sophisticated interpretation of Jewish texts with innovative contemporary design to express the essence of objects used for celebrations and ceremonies. The union of interpretation and design with fine craftsmanship has distinguished her work for private and institutional clients around the world. Since 1996, when she won second place in the Philip and Sylvia Spertus Judaica Prize for her seder plate, Amy has participated in invited juried exhibitions in museums around the globe. Her work is on display at The Jewish Museum, NY, The Jewish Museum, Vienna, The Yale University Art Gallery, and The San Francisco Contemporary Jewish Museum. Amy received her BA and MArch from Yale University and combines her studio work with teaching at the School of the Art Institute, Chicago.

Amy has been working with the PAS Space Committee and MBB to repurpose the Gottlieb windows in multiple locations in our two buildings to create a common thread throughout our new campus. She has consulted with our clergy to highlight PAS values in the art installation on the lobby wall that will greet visitors to the Lifelong Learning Center. She has worked with the PAS Education team and clergy to create educational experiences throughout the campus, including presentations along the hallway on each floor of the Lifelong Learning Center that showcase each book of the Torah. Amy continues to assist in the design of the new chapels, featuring liturgical quotations to ensure a balance of tradition and practicality. Importantly, Amy has contributed to the design of the many mezuzot that will be used throughout the campus, so their placement on the doorposts will reflect our goal of being an inclusive community.

We are grateful for Amy's thoughtful and inspired attention to unifying the Lifelong Learning Center and our 87th Street building into a campus that will reflect Jewish values and history with elegance and beauty.

8:00 pm | Concert: Cantor Shira Lissek, Ani Maamin, I Believe

Most American Jews have no memory of the vibrant Jewish society that existed in Eastern Europe before the Holocaust, and thus our vision of this vanished world is indelibly colored by nostalgia – think Fiddler on the Roof. Dr. Meir will compare the myth of East European Jewry with the historical reality, and explore what remembering beyond nostalgia could contribute to our identity as 21st-century American Jews. In concert with chamber orchestra, Cantor Lissek will perform selections from her new album, Ani Maamin, I Believe. All attendees will receive a copy of the CD in recognition of this meaningful evening.

Natan M. Meir is Chair of the Harold Schnitzer Family Program in Judaic Studies at Portland State University, where he specializes in Jewish social and cultural history in Eastern Europe, as well as modern European Jewish history. On sabbatical this year, he is a

Traveling to Find Our Way Home

The Sh'ma includes the commandment to dwell on the meaning of Torah “when you sit in your home, when walk on your way, when you lie down, and when you rise up.” This sacred text teaches us that finding and creating meaning in Jewish life does not happen in just one zip code or at one time of day.

Informed by this biblical imperative, Travel with PAS creates dynamic Jewish learning experiences around the globe that expand both the mind and soul. Our trips to Israel, Poland, Cuba, Germany, Prague, and Budapest have reinforced our ties to Judaism and the Jewish people through reflection on the history and the present state of each locale. Traveling with fellow congregants, clergy, and educators, we share experiences as they unfold, with some of the most memorable events unplanned and unscheduled.

Our journeys are not only educational, but also community building. In the words of a traveler to Prague and Budapest: “This trip was extremely educational, enlightening, meaningful, moving and fun. The ability to travel and learn and experience the history and current state of Jewish life in a different part of the world together with our clergy and friends is unique and was something we could not have done on our own. It was a transformational experience.” By giving as much attention to pre-trip gatherings and post-trip reunions as to the itinerary itself, we emphasize that a trip is just the beginning of our communal learning experience.

The centerpiece of our travel agenda is Israel. Rabbi Cosgrove’s commitment to offering a trip to Israel at least once a year bespeaks the vision that our ancestral homeland is the linchpin for Jews worldwide. PAS Israel trips immerse participants in all things Israel (art, food, literature, and liberal spiritual and religious life) as well as the timeless beauty of our ancient homeland and the complexity of the modern state. Further, our trips impress on our community the sense of responsibility that we must all share for the well-being, safety, and vitality of our modern Jewish homeland.

PAS travel experiences are designed not only to reinforce what we have in common with Jews around the globe, but also to energize us to recommit our efforts to making PAS a beacon of Judaism for the next generation and beyond. Ultimately our PAS trips actualize the Torah’s vision that we make Judaism come alive wherever we go.

I am thrilled to announce that to celebrate Israel’s milestone birthday next year, we are planning a congregational mission to Israel, chaired by Amy Steiner and Darcy Dalton. L’shanah ha-ba-ah biy’rushalayim! Next year in Jerusalem!

FIFTY YEARS AGO AT PAS –

Marc Chagall: The Facts of Fantasy

On April 7, 1967 Abraham (A.L.) Chanin, an art historian, educator, and lecturer at the Museum of Modern Art, spoke to the congregation on the life and work of Marc Chagall. The lecture coincided with the opening of the 8th annual Art Show, produced by the Mr. and Mrs. Club and a highlight of PAS spring programming. Chagall came from a Russian Hasidic family whose joy of life permeated his work. During the early days of the Russian Revolution, Chagall was commissioned to paint large murals for the walls of the new State Jewish Chamber Theatre, works which recall the exuberance of his life in Vitebsk. As the Soviet regime became more repressive, Chagall moved to Paris and then travelled to Palestine, and throughout Europe. After Hitler's rise to power, Chagall and his family secured exit visas to the United States with the help of notable individuals in New York who knew Chagall's work and his role in the avant-garde art scene. He arrived in New York in June 1941, the day before the Germans invaded the Soviet Union. Chagall's monumental murals The Sources of Music and The Triumph of Music were commissioned for the Metropolitan Opera House at Lincoln Center, where they were unveiled in 1967.

Following Chanin's lecture, Rabbi Nadich told of meeting Marc Chagall in 1946 during a visit to a displaced persons camp for orphaned children outside of Paris. "I remember so vividly the emotional outpouring of this man among the many children – how he walked among them, spoke with them, and laughed with them, and shed a few tears because of them."

A. L. Chanin To Speak on Marc Chagall

A. L. Chanin, Lecturer on Art

The Mr. and Mrs. Club will sponsor the Friday night service on April 7, at 8:30 p.m. conducted by Rabbi Judah Nadich and Hazzan David J. Putterman together with the synagogue choir with Mr. Neil Robinson at the organ. The service will begin the art week-end, an annual event and major project of the Mr. and Mrs. Club. Mr. A. L. Chanin, a foremost lecturer on art from old masters to modern artists, will speak on "Marc Chagall: The Facts of Fantasy" which will deal with aspects of the life and work of the great artist.

In 1946 after combat service with General Patton's Third Army, Mr. Chanin joined the Museum of Modern Art as staff lecturer and since then has spoken also at innumerable clubs and organizations. He is the author of a unique book "Art Guide", the only book which discusses the important paintings in New York museums from early Italian to recent abstractions.

The following members will participate in the reading of the prayers during the service: Avron Brog, Dr. Julius J. Leichtling, Richard Osserman, Mrs. Robert Altman, Mrs. Eli Lazarus, Mrs. Murray Rothenberg, Mrs. Ben Thylan.

Listen to excerpts from A.L. Chanin's lecture at pasyn.org/shapiroaudioarchive. Check out Chagall's memoir or a book about his art from the Rothschild Library.
